

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A display filter, which is arranged in alignment with a screen of a display unit, has a function of absorbing visible rays having a wavelength other than wavelengths of red, green and blue lights. For instance, the function is accomplished by a transparent substrate positioned in alignment with the screen, and a light absorber mixed in the transparent substrate, the light absorber absorbing visible rays having a wavelength other than wavelengths of red, green and blue lights.